MONESSEN HAS A GOOD SIZED MORNING FIRE

This morning about 2:30 o'clock a fire was discovered in the grocery store of Carmen Tucci at 905 Schoonmaker avenue and within a few moments spread to several adjoining buildings. The origin of the blaze is unknown; everthing was in good order when the store was closed at 10 o'clock last evening. From Tucci's store the blaze ate its way through the intervening wall into the two story building occupied by Stephen Tranos as a butcher shop and dwelling house. He and his wife both had very narrow escapes from suffocation. They were awakened by the occupants of the lower floors but the flames had cut off almost every means of escape. Mrs. Tranos has been confined to her home for some time and her escape is considered miraculous. She is now resting quietly at the home of neighbors. In the rear of the building which was at the corner of Ninth and Schoonmaker avenue, was a tenement house occupied by 6 families, these hurriedly carried their belongings out and left two little children lying in their beds and liable at any minute to be suffocated owing to the density of the smoke. These were rescued by Patrolman Kit Wheatley and several of the firemen.

When the firemen arrived on the scene there was little hope entertained for any of the buildings in the row but by some quick work and with two streams playing on the most vital spots, further damage was averted and attention was then turned to the saving of the remainder of the burning buildings. After being seemingly extinguished the flames would break out repeatedly in the ceiling and the side walls and holes had to made through the sides of the building in order to get at these.

The building at 905, owned by R. Destefano and valued at $1,000 is a total loss; the stock in the store was valued at $2,000 and is covered by $800 insurance. The loss to the other buildings where the meat market was located is about $2,000 and the loss to household goods and the furnishings in the meat market about $2,000 which is covered by $1,200 insurance. The policy on this last is said to have been dead for the last few days. During the fire the telephone and electric wires were burned down cutting off outside and local communication for several hours and throwing the 3rd ward into total darkness for some time One of the firemen, William Eller had a narrow escape when he stepped on a live wire. He was rescued by Charles Wadsworth.

PYTHIAN KNIGHTS TO CONFER HIGH DEGREE

Next Friday evening will no doubt be a big day for the Knights of Pythias in this locality and Monessen in particular at which time it is expected that there will be in attendance over 200 visiting members of the lodge at the annual meeting for the conferring of the Past Chancellors Degree here. Among the grand officers to be present are: Grand Chancellor George H. Hoffman of Philadelphia; Grand Vice-Chancellor J. W. Hutchison of Butler and Grand Master of Arms Benjamin Moore of Bellevue. These officers are expected to arrive at West Monessen on Friday at noon and will be met by a committee from the local branch of the lodge and will be escorted here.

The meeting will open in the Elks' hall at 7 o'clock in the evening, at which time the Past Chancellor's degree will be conferred on the candidates. From there the meeting will be adjourned to the opera house where an open session will be held with speeches by the grand officers and special musical features both vocal and instrumental. This will be followed by the serving of refreshments in the hall. From there the meeting at the Elks' hall will be exemplified by the grand officers.

This is similar to a distract convention and the territory included is the Monongahela valley from McKeesport to Brownsville, the Yough valley as far as Jacob's Creek and along the main line taking in Irwin, Jeanette, Greensburg and Latrobe.

LOCAL SCHOOLS WILL NOT HOLD A UNION PIC-NIC

According to present plans the local schools will not hold an annual picnic this year as has been the custom heretofore. Several of the rooms will have picnics however, and these are expected to be held at Eldora Park which this year is expected to be better than ever before. Many improvements are being made on this beautiful park and it is expected that a large number of lodges and Sunday Schools will take advantage of this and hold their picnics there this year.

The Donora Schools will hold their outing there on Friday, May 31. On Thursday, May 23 the Monongahela schools have been booked and the following day, Friday, May 24 has been set aside for Charleroi schools.

VIEWERS AND BOARD OF TRADE MEET TO RE-LOCATE PUBLIC ROAD AND DINE AT FIFTH AVE.

There is more than ordinary interest being manifest by our people, as a town, as well as by those in the immediate neighborhood, in the view so much talked of, and which was yesterday gone over thoroughly, relocating the Webster, Monessen and Belle Vernon public road. The board of viewers here yesterday were W. H. Matthews of Ligonier, Luke Lonergan of Greensburg and A. M. Dick of West Newton.

A large delegation from the Monessen Board of Trade, under which organization the project is being directed, was present with the viewers in their day's deliberations.

The business meeting was held in the parlors of the Fifth Avenue Hotel. A. N. Shuster, chairman of the road committee called the meeting to order and the ideas and opinions of those present were freely expressed, the general trend of which was most gratifying.

One property owner along the route of the proposed roadway, named Martin, seems to be the only one to object, he being represented at the view by Attorney Alex Eicher, who has called a public hearing at the court house, Greensburg, for Friday of this week, and as Martin's neighbors and friends will testify in favor of the road it is thought that it will be an easy matter to overcome the opposition in a manner satisfactory to all.

This will be a state-aid road, built jointly by the State and Rostraver township.

The Board of Viewers and local representatives of the Board of Trade all took dinner at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, a special menu having been prepared for the guests, under the supervision of Mrs. Seanor herself, and to say it was "one of the finest," would be useless, as the reputation of that house is too well known. It was a dinner of the season—everything procurable from the market—and served in the inimitable style wholly Mrs. Seanor's own, and both she and Mr. Seanor are entitled to credit for the most excellent manner is which this distinguished body of men were entertained.

Those in the party were: E. C. Sattley, Alex Eicher, John Duvall, Geo. W. Martin, Sam Lynn, Andy Budd C. S. Duvall, A. M. Dick, Luke Lonergan, Wm. Matthews, John Vogel, Lou Shepler, John C. Rankin, C. W. Greer, W. W. Luce, H. D. McCabe, A. W. Kelly, A. N. Shuster, John Hutchinson, Dr. W. D. Hunter, W. S. Bumbaugh, G. F. Wright, J. M. Stacey, C. L. Schuck and H. R. Pore.

MADE DISTRIBUTING CENTER

B. Mouzakiotis, treasurer and general sales agent for the Hermes Shoe Polish Co., and of the exporting and importing firm of Kapantais & Co., of Chicago was a visitor in town yesterday and has given the agency for his firm's products to Gus Panos of this place. The territory comprised includes all of Western Pennsyvania and parts of West Virginia and Ohio. Mr. Mouzakiotis is one of Chicago's successful business men and his rise has been a rapid one due, in a great measure, to his always courteous treatment to his customers.

START A REAL ROUGH HOUSE

Last evening about 9 o'clock, Luigi Romeo and Marceo Truni got into an altercation in a restaurant on Donner avenue over a trivial matter and for a time threatened to break everything in the place. The pair had been in the restaurant but a short time when they were provoked to angry words and later came to blows. The glass show cases were broken, a large number of dishes scattered over the floor and even the plaster from the walls was knocked off in large spots during the fray. The participants were arrested by Partolman Lang and were placed in jail to await a hearing. Later they were released on bail.

LADS ARRESTED ON A CHARGE OF LARCENY

Henry Trautman, aged 19 and Samuel McCollum, aged 17 were arrested yesterday in company with two other young men on a charge of larceny. It was alleged that the McCollum boy had taken some of the furniture, which his parents who are now in Steubenville, O., had stored before they left this place, and had sold it to two local second hand dealers, J. Bornstein and I. Ginsberg. The boy is said to have sold a stove valued at $80 for $6, a brass bed valued at $30 for $6 and a floss candy machine and a rocker for $5 each. The money was spent during the last few days by the four who were arrested, so the McCollum boy testified this morning. McCollum's mother came on this morning and paid back the money he had received for the articles and the alleged culprits were discharged. They were given three days to secure work, otherwise they will be taken in charge by the county authorities.

PROGRESSIVE DEMOCRATS VICTORIOUS

Another big political convention has been held within the borders of our old Keystone state. The big meeting was held at Harrisburg yesterday and today, but when those big-hearted, rapid-fire Democrats got together they worked so hard and fast that most of the important work was done up the first day, leaving very little to be finished today except the assimilation, as it were, and according to reports, a goodly share of that too was done yesterday.

In the first day of the convention the spirit of "reorganization" seemed to prevail as was also the feature in the opposition party convention of a week ago, and from the very fall of the gavil the country wide sentiment of a change in bosses was a paramount necessity.

The convention differed insomuch as the Guffey Democracy went down with colors flying and band playing, so-to-speak, and the new state leaders, Geo. W. Guthrie, A. Mitchell Palmer and Vance C. McCormick took hold with equally good grace as did the old leaders relinquish and step down and out.

After making it plain as to who "ruled the roost," the convention got down to business and proceeded with the choosing of representative standard bearers, the adoption of a platform and the nomination of a ticket, partially as follows:

Auditor general, Robert E. Cresswell of Johnstown.

State Treasurer, Wm. H. Berry of Delaware county.

Congressman at Large, George B. Shaw of Westmoreland; Jos. Howley, Allegheny, Geo R. McLean, Luzerne and E. E. Greenawalt of Lancaster county

The convention was lively, but the defeated leaders submitted gracefully and expressed themselves satisfied with the result and pledged undivided support for the organization and the ticket.

Regulating Auto Speeding

Reading's police authorities, under the vigorous administration of that city's Mayor, have been bearing down heavily upon automobilists who are indifferent to the life and limb of pedestrians that cross the streets, with the result that law is teaching a costly lesson to the mad speeders, and the municipality is performing a good public service. In one day the fines aggregated $45, about $11 being imposed on each offender. The veteran minstrel, Lew. Simmons, was killed by an automobile in Reading some months ago, besides other citizens at times injured, which carelessness upon the part of "joy riders" incensed the public to demand official action. Even Governor Tenor ran up against Reading law with his auto on a recent Sunday, and legal action was proposed against this rider of car No. 1, owned by the State. But in view of the fact that the Commonwealth cannot be used for auto speeding, there was a hitch in the legal procedure until the Governor personally paid the fine of $11.25. In an action against Governor Tener by Montgomery county authorities last year, it was then pointed out that the State was owner of car No. 1, in which he had ridden past the watchful eyes of constables, and the Governor in that case, too, responded that if he had been going too rapidly in the State auto along Montgomery county's highways, he would gladly pay the fine personally. Owners of machines in Monessen are all pretty careful drivers and watchful for the safety and life of humanity, and as yet our town has not had a fatality. The feature to be most watched by our officials are "joy riders" or strangers coming in or passing through from other points, many of whom have been noticed who were going at very fast speed—far beyond that prescribed by law. One or two arrests of this class would place Monessen among the safest auto towns in the state.

The Jury System

Major Jesse M. Baker, a lawyer and a retired army officer, is quoted in a manner which will be indorsed by many, and especially by those who have had the misfortune to be compelled to appeal to the law for justice. He says:

"The trials of defendants for stealing a pair of old pants or a chicken, by Judge and jury, is a relic of barbarism and useless expense to the taxpayers. There is no need of twelve men sitting on a jury in many of the cases. What does the Judge usually say? He instructs the jury as to facts and law in the case and then remarks: "Gen'lemen, these are the facts and the law, but I leave the matter in your hands to determine and decide the case." And then the jury goes out and very likely brings in a verdict just opposite to the facts and the law, because they may happen to know the defendant or have sympathy with his family. Over in the Philippines they do things better. One Judge sits on criminal cases, knows the law and can judge what the facts are and decides. That should be done here—a jury of "twelve men of your peers" is, I say, a relic of barbarism."

Monday was what is known in Washington county court as constables' return day and a little sensation was sprung. A number failed to appear and report, and District Attorney R. G. Miller having previously made it his business to ascertain the location of liquor dispensing clubs and orders, was posted as to where constables failed to make specific note in their return, and in such cases he quietly called the offender to the bar and handed back his return sheet with a modest request to "try it again" and return later. Thus hereafter District Attorney Miller will know just where intoxicants are being illegally handled as well as legally. By scanning the list of returns of such places to the Washington court and considering the list which the district attorney gave the opportunity of returning later, one would be led to conclude that in that county there is more liquor dispensed through that channel than there is over the legalized bars where the owner pays to the state and county a high rate for the privilege. District Attorney Miller evidently sees there is something not just right and is going after the wrong in dead earnest, as was done in Westmoreland and other counties. Is he right? Sure he is! The more leniency shown along such lines the more violations there will be, the more injustice to those who pay the price to conduct the business as nearly right as it can be done, and the more unhappiness brought upon and into homes where once reigned peace and contentment.

SYSTEM IS NEEDED IN THIS

Operation of Spring House Cleaning Seems to Cry for Reform, Says Mere Man.

We have no desire to pose as one criticizing another's method of work. Our notion is that a man who has spent his life running a hotel knows how to do it better than we do, who patronize hotels only for toothpicks, matches and writing paper. Our motto is: "Shoemaker, mind your own business!" and we adhere strictly to it. Ordinarily we let the lady who runs our house alone. If we think she is making a bed backwards, or putting too much baking powder in the biscuits, we say nothing. Bedmaking and cooking are her profession; ours is paying the bills.

But with housecleaning time approaching we pause a moment here to suggest that there is no overwhelming anxiety on the part of mere man to have a house cleaned from cellar to dome in a single day. Admitting that we know very little about housecleaning as an art, we declare that it seems unnecessary to rip up every room in the house as a starter. We cannot see why it is necessary to take the rug off the back bedroom floor in order to get all the dust off the parlor pictures. We may be wrong, but it strikes us as curious that she cannot clean behind the sofa in the den unless the downstairs hall is barricaded with the dining room furniture. Why it is necessary to dump everything out of the front bedroom in order to clean the kitchen windows has never been made clear to us.

We realize that we are treading on dangerous ground. But surely if there ever was anything in need of a little system it is spring housecleaning.—Detroit Free Press.

Moses, Electrician.

That electricity must have been known to the ancients has been many times asserted, but now comes forward an electrician in Munich—Mr. Stadelmann—who has been in times past an archaeologist, to assert that he found in Egypt, in buried walls, indications denoting the use of electric lamps, says a writer in Harper's Weekly. He claims that Moses brought electricity from Egypt, and that there are Biblical paragraphs which will bear him out in his statement that lightning rods were in use in the temple at Jerusalem. Stadelmann believes that the serpent of bronze of Moses was nothing more or less than an ordinary lightning rod such as is in use today.

He points out, further, that the Ark of the Covenant, made as it was of wood and adorned inside and out with gold, constituted a veritable Leyden jar which communicated with a lightning rod on the roof, and that it was so arranged that under determined conditions it could be charged with electric fluid and produce the death of any ignorant person daring to enter the sacred precincts of the ark without necessary precautions.

Woman's Factory.

A silk spinning factory near Marseilles, which was organized by a woman and is managed by women, boasts that within the nine years of its existence it has never had a strike. One thousand women are employed by Mme. Garnier, the owner. The only men in the factory are those employed to fill positions unsuitable for women, such as stokers, etc.

Mme. Garnier planned the factory herself in every detail. The machinery for silk spinning is an invention of her own, and has proved so successful that she is enabled to give her employes more than the average wages and still compete successfully with rival industries. Perhaps some of our own manufacturers would do well to go and take a few lessons from Mme. Garnier.

By Camel Across the Sahara.

N. le More, a Frenchman, 24 years old, has just completed a journey by camel across the Sahara from Algiers to Timbuctoo, in the French Soudan. His object was to mark out the route for a proposed aeroplane flight avross the desert. He was away from civilization for 13 months, and covered more than 5,000 miles. At Ain Salah, which was reached after 13 days, the traveler met another Frenchman and his wife, living in the lonely district. After that the caravan went for 29 days without meeting another human being.

BALKY HORSE CAUSES A LOT OF EXCITEMENT

This morning about 9 o'clock the driver of a delivery wagon belonging to P. Papudis, a baker, became stuck in the alley back of the Star theatre and his fiery steed refused to be prodded and kicked into moving. It seems as though the driver has never attended a riding school and his handling of the horse was rather comical. At any rate when the animal, which kicked like Maud and pulled like an engine going backward, got balky it was all off and a beating process attempted, but this proved fruitless although there were two of Papudis's employees laying it on the horse in regular old "Simon Legree fashion." Finally the horse broke the shafts and harness and attemped "a getaway" but was caught and taken to its stables. The incident created no end of excitement and it is said that Carl Woodward was around trying to get some of the witnesses in the buildings nearby to take out an accident policy and also to issue a few plate glass policies.

BEWARE OF THOSE BOGUS DICTIONARIES

The publishers of a certain Pittsburgh newspaper have failed to fool many people in the Pittsburgh district by advertising to furnish subscribers for their paper, "Webster's Dictionaries." These publishers know that these so called Webster Dictionaries are not the genuine Webster Dictionaries, but take it for granted that a large percentage of their subscribers are ignorant concerning dictionaries. Thus being ignorant, they are unable to differentiate between a genuine Webster and a bogus Webster. The name "Webster" is the bait that catches the "suckers".

Beware, also, of a fellow who is going about Monessen trying to sell a Webster by representing it to be the latest and most up-to-date dictionary, when as a matter of fact it was issued in 1864. The people of Monessen should be on their guard against such deception Prof H. E. Gress of the Monessen High school warns the people of this city against spurious or bogus dictionaries when he says: "The G & C. Merriam Co., Springfield, Mass, are the publishers of the only genuine Webster Dictionaries." A word to the wise should be sufficient.

The latest and most complete dictionary extant is "Webster's New International Dictionary," published by the G. & C. Merriam Company. This work contains 3,000 pages, 6,000 illustrations, with 400,000 defined words and phrases This dictionary is a complete library, covering all departments of knowledge It is a cyclopaedia as well It answers every legitimate question. Next to the Bible it is the most valuable book in the English language

Those who write to or call on W. C. Moore, Monongahela House, Monessen, may learn further particulars concerning "Webster's New International Dictionary."

MAN ESCAPES DANGER

A narrow escape from being run over by a train or automobile gives a sense of danger easily realized. James Allen of Brooklyn was in a danger just as perilous, and he escaped by knowing just what to do.

In a letter he says: "I had been in poor health for three years and might have been yet if it had not been for Vinol which built me up wonderfully. Almost immediately after I began taking it I began to improve and gain weight. My appetite is now good, I sleep well and feel as well as I ever did."

Hundreds of worn out, miserable people right around here who are in broken health and think there is no help for them, could be built up and made strong by Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron remedy without oil. Weak, sickly women and men, puny children and feeble old people need the new strength and vitality that Vinol gives, and they ought to begin taking it right now. We guarantee Vinol to give satisfaction, and pay back your money if it does not. Hirsch Drug Co., Monessen, Pa.

Getting Started

Genevieve is always in a hurry. The only possible thing that, according to her friends, could prevent her from hurrying would be a state of general paralysis.

One of the contributory causes to her normal state of being in a hurry is that she does not make up her mind until the last possible minute. That was why it was not until her husband had pushed back his chair from the breakfast table that she suddenly exclaimed: "I think we'll go down to Springfield, Ill., to Cousin Nettie's wedding today, after all The train leaves at 11 o'clock and we'll get in with plenty of time to rest and dress, for the wedding is not till eight o'clock."

"All right," said her husband "You'd better drive down in the electric and pick me up at the office. I'll have a boy from the office get the car at the station and take it home"

Genevieve started from the house with plenty of time and with three suit cases blocking up all the interior of the electric that she did not occupy herself. To be sure, she had a few errands, such as stopping at the milliner's for her latest hat, getting a bracelet at the jeweler's and picking out some flowers to wear that night, but she knew that she could do these errands in a hurry. When she arrived at her husband's office he was just able to see the tip of her nose above the luggage and the boxes beneath which she was apparently buried.

"Drive on!" he ordered. "I'll take a street car. Why didn't you bring along a truck to carry all that stuff?"

Genevieve engineered her car through the perilous way to the railroad station and there waited for her husband As the big clock pointed to one minute past train time he came rushing up, red and breathless. H's street car had been blocked. They had, indeed, missed the train

It was a sad ride home Genevieve's husband had to go along to drive the car, in consequence of Genevieve's being dissolved in tears over the fiasco Her grief seemed to be equally divided between sorrow at missing the wedding and woe over not being able to show off her new evening gown When she grew tired of telling her husband that it was his fault, he told her that it was hers, until she grew rested and could resume the theme

By the time Genevieve reached home she had retired somewhat Rushing to the telephone, she called up three railroad offices sent two telegrams and got Springfield on the long distance phone Then, just as her husband reached his office, she phoned him

"There's a train on a different road going at 2 30," she informed him "I've phoned for tickets to be ready and have made all arrangements. All you've got to do is—"

"I won't!" her husband interrupted in the loud determined tone that men use when they are mortally afraid they are going to give in "I wouldn't go through all that agony and fuss again for—"

"And I'll meet you right by the big gate." Genevieve ended as calmly as though he had not spoken

"But—" yelled her husband.

"And if we miss the wedding we'll be there in time for the reception," added Genevieve, sweetly "Goodby, dear. At 2:15 remember!"

"But—" roared her husband as she hung up the receiver.

Genevieve's husband was there on time, and so was Genevieve, with the three suit cases, the hat, the flowers and triumph at really getting off after all. Even her husband melted under her cheerfulness.

After they had rolled along for an hour he admitted that a little rest and change from the office was a good thing and that he really should enjoy the wedding and seeing all the relatives. Then Genevieve got out some cards and they played penuchle Then they read a story and had dinner The train was due at 7:45, Genevieve said Strange to say, it was on time They rushed out of the car with all their hand luggage and ran for a cab

"We can make the house in ten minutes and get dressed in twenty" Genevieve said "We—my goodness, Arthur, what's happened to the place? Why—why—"

She grabbed a passing native. "Isn't this Springfield?" she shrieked "Yessum," he said, in surprise "Springfield it is Springfield, Ind."

Possibly Regretted Enthusiasm.

An enthusiastic member of the anti-tobacco party was a guest at a dinner at a house on the upper West side recently, where he allowed a course to go untouched while he spoke of the "tobacco nuisance," concluding by saying that he hoped that all the men present would agree, if they could do no more, to refrain from smoking in public places and in the presence of women. In telling of the incident the host said: "We all agreed without further argument, and our friend seemed to be elated over his victory until he learned that there was only one smoker in the house and that was my daughter, whose husband is going to learn in order to keep her company."—New York Tribune.
